Gospel Services

Roros And Dina
Evangelistic services have been conducted at the Roros and Zion churches, under the auspices of the United Lutheran Church, by missionaries T. J. Alvestad, of Chicago, E. L. Scottvold and K. W. Tanner, of Camrose J. Troland and P. N. Laborg, of Daysland, also Rev Braa, the pastor.

Services were conducted at Roros on Sunday last at 10.30 a.m., 2 p.m. and at 8 p.m.. There was a full attendance at each of the services. The morning service was conducted in the Norwegian language. Dinner, bread and pickles. During the afternoon Mrs Keith sang several solos, accompanied at the organ by Miss O. Fokins.

Supper was served to the visitors from Chauvin, of whom there were seven.

On Monday similar services were held at the Zion church by the same mission party.

Dedication Of

Corner Stones

Tuesday August 2nd was a red letter day in the history of both the Roros church and the Zion church, being the occasion of the visit of the Right Rev. J. R. Layk, president of the Canadian district of the United Lutheran church, to dedicate the corner stone of both churches.

Great Improvements

At Roros Church

During the past weeks the congregation of the Roros church have carried out some splendid improvements to this building. From the main north road the structure presents an imposing appearance, whilst the interior has been remodelled and enlarged in view of capacity and comfort. When the work is completed the building will look beautiful both within and without. An extensive basement has been excavated and built up with cement. In this basement is located a spacious entrance, and the balance of the room provides ample accommodation for social gatherings, or as on Sunday, for serving community meals. The members of the congregation have donated much of the labor, the work being well done, and done at a great saving of cost.

Herbert Greenfield

Premier Of Alberta

Herbert Greenfield who has been selected as the new Premier of Alberta, was born in Winchester, England, 52 years ago. He is an out and out farmer, and has passed through the mill from being an hired man to the owner of one of the finest farms in Northern Alberta.

He came to Canada in 1892 and for several years was engaged in farming at Watford, in Western Ontario. In 1906 he homesteaded at Westlock and has resided there ever since. He is a man of strong personality and is considered by his admirers to be eminently fitted to guide the farmers' destiny in Alberta.

Chauvin Troop

Return Bringing

Back The Laurels

The Chauvin troop of the 19th Alberta Dragoons has returned from camp, Tuesday, after one of the most successful camp trainings ever undertaken by this regiment. During this period the Chauvin troop won 41 position of being the "crack" troop of the regiment.

The troop on leaving Chauvin Sunday July 24th, 28 strong, were presenting a fine appearance in their uniforms. They were presented with a medal by comrade Clifford to break the monotony of the trip. Edmonton was reached in the early hours of Monday morning.

The first important business was that of making camp, in which the Chauvin troop being early arrivals had a large part. The day that followed was fully occupied, being made up of mounted drill in the forenoon and rifle drill in the afternoon. It is needless to say that the Chauvin men showed up to splendid advantage, thanks to the training they had received under Major Stenham, before leaving for camp.

Chauvin came away with the lion's share of the honors. In the inspection for the cleanest tents in the whole lines Chauvin took the first and second prizes alike. Messrs Godin, Egen, Burton, McDonald and "ney" taking first, Edgerton, Stenham, Stenham and Russell taking second.

In the field of sports Chauvin made a clean up of the prizes. Trooper A. Price gaining first prize as the best turn out mounted trooper.

Tug-of-war was won by Chauvin. Capt Johnston, troopers Gilmour, Pierce and Egen.

Wrestling on horse back: first and second to Chauvin.

Horse race: 16 hands: Chauvin first and third.

Pony race: Chauvin second.

Footrace: Cpl LaPearle took second losing first only by a head.

Indoor baseball: Chauvin team won first by 19-6 in the regimental tournament.

Refreshments will be served on the grounds. Everyone on the grounds will be at their own risk. Admission: $1.00; Children under 15 free. For further particulars see R. H. Greenwood, Manager, Paradise Valley.

Lealholme Picnic

The rain and gloomy sky on July 26th by no means spoilt the sports at Prosperity. Baseball between Battle Hill and Lealholme was the first on the programme. Battle Hill held the highest score 61 till the last inning, then Lealholme got their arms up and played, which made the game a tie of 8-3.

A fast and hard game of Basket Ball between Lealholme and Chauvin girls was then played, the score being 2-6 in favor of Chauvin.

Mr. Gilbertson and Mr. Knutson supplied the music for the dance needless to say the school was overcrowded, but everybody kept the floor down till 2.30 in the morning. The proceeds amounted to $65.65.

Municipal Hospitals

Increase In Alberta

Eight municipal hospitals have been opened in Alberta during the past year, and four new hospital districts established. Schemes ratified by ratepayers up to the end of the year provide for 196 beds, and during the year, 2,435 patients were admitted to those hospitals in operation. The rural tax rate for the support of the hospitals varied from 2 1/2 cents an acre to 4 cents per acre.

Examination Results

The following were successful in passing Grade XI examinations: Dorothy Saul; Florence Cahill; Cecil Burton; Mrs. Margaret Laws. This being 100 per cent is an exceptionally good record.

GRADUATE X—Gladys Saul, Lory Withnell, Eileen Ellis.

Fall Rye Proves

Good Utility Crop

After having cut about one and a half loads of hay per acre this summer Irving Neil will in the next few days start in to harvest a crop of rye which promises around fifteen bushels to the acre. This crop fairly light land.

From another patch of five acres Mr. Neil will harvest a crop of rye which promises to yield about twelve bushels to the acre. This field was, however, used as a pasture until June 3rd. Both the above fields were sown on summerfallow last year, and the rye is of the fall variety.

Mr. Neil's experience with rye leads him to observe that fall rye needs to be sown on good land to assure the best returns. In 1920 he found rye to be his most profitable grain crop, in the present year he anticipates that wheat will prove the most profitable.

Saskatoon Newspaper

Publisher Is Injured

Joseph Clarke, publisher of the Dundurn Enterprise was seriously injured when his automobile was struck by a train near that place Sunday. He was brought to St. Pauls Hospital, Saskatoon, suffering from a scalp wound and a badly mutilated compound fracture of the right forearm which may make amputation necessary. Rain on the windshield was the cause of the accident.

Real English Raisin Loaves, baked by J. P. Fisher at the Chauvin Bakery.

Dr. Bugzins, Dentist, will visit Chauvin August 18th 19th and 20th.

Wedding Bells

On Wednesday July 27th the marriage of Miss Mary Cargill, of Airlie to Mr. A. Sim of Claresholm took place at the home of the brides parents.

The bride was attended by her sister Miss Mina Cargill and Mr. George Gibb supported the bridegroom. The Rev. Milner, of Chauvin officiated at the Ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Sim will leave shortly for Claresholm, where they will reside. The good wishes of their many friends from Chauvin and Airlie for their happiness will be with them.

Excellent Raspberries

Grown By D. Reynolds

Mr. Dave Reynolds, brought into our office on Saturday morning a box of very fine raspberries which he had gathered that morning from his own garden. They were of uniform size and color and excellent quality. Mr. Reynolds informed us that he had gathered about 80 quarts during the past week. This is surely an illustration of the feasibility of growing tame small fruits around this district.

Judge Injured

By Angry Boar

Dr. Benjamin of Vermilion school of Agriculture was attacked by a boar while judging swine at Lloydminster Fair on Wednesday morning. A gash of seven or eight inches long was made in the man's leg just above the knee, the wound being a very serious one. The injured man was taken to the hospital after having received first aid by a doctor.

Presentation

At LaPearle

The Y.P.S. of LaPearle Church met in a social capacity on Thursday evening. After an impromptu program of songs and recitations had been successfully carried out, Rev. Mitchell gave an address in which he said in effect: We have met especially to do honor to two of our friends—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dallyn nee Frances Morrison, who have just been united in the holy bond of wedlock. Marriage as a failure, provided both parties have a failure, and led by God—But is like the echo of a song ascending from the base of a great mountain. The echo's breaking through its turreted peaks blending into one hundred voices, making an exquisite and beautiful whole.

Therefore it affords us the Y.P.S. the greatest pleasure to express our good wishes for your future prosperity and happiness.

Mrs Morrison in her own neat and kind words presented them with a beautiful bible, handsomely bound.

Mr. Dallyn replied on behalf of himself and his wife, thanking the society for their kindness and good wishes.

A FARM ACCOUNTING SYSTEM THAT IS A GOOD THING FOR EVERY FARMER
 Duna and Bradstreet, the greatest mercantile agencies, both say that: "Carelessness is the greatest business criminal"—that 60 per cent of failures are due to this cause.

As a class, farmers are apt to be financially careless—very largely because there has hitherto been no complete method—so simple, the ordinary man could follow it—provided for keeping accurate account of their operations.

Scott's SIMPLIFIED Accounting System for Farmers meets this need. Kits forms providing for a monthly showings n every branch of farm wor for Five Years—including a detailed inventory which will be accepted by any bank.

Following its simple principles, any farmer can keep accurate accounts—have a perfect check on every branch of farm work—it is a perfect book-keeping system—compiled by a banking expert especially for farmers.

The only system which is given a Systematized Pocket Note Book and simplifies your income tax return.

Ask to see the endorsement of the system by government officials and farmers' organizations officials, and leading financial men.

Copies can be obtained from the Chauvin Pharmacy.

Farm land values in Canada have increased $7 per cent, during the past five years.

Due chiefly to the drop in costs of materials and wages, farmers throughout the prairie provinces are erecting many buildings this year, says J. R. Davidson, editor and manager of the the Prairie Lumberman, who was a visitor to Vancouver a few days ago. A campaign is under way among the retail lumbermen and farmers, urging the erection of 2000 silos this year, and this is meeting with success more plans and specifications having been prepared and more structures being under way probably than at any other time in the history of the west.

During the period January 1st to June 30th, this year, 2352 home-seeds and 714 soldier grant entries were recorded at Dominion Land offices in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, representing 2,897 settlers and about half a million acres of land, principally in territory served by lines of the Canadian National Railway. The chief recording offices are Winnipeg and Dauphin in Manitoba and Battleford, Swift Current, Moose Jaw, Prince Albert and Saskatoon, in Saskatchewan.

Life insurance in force in Canada today amounts to $2557,937,219, about $300 per head of the population. The greater part of this is carried by Canadian companies.

Now that the Farmers party control Alberta politics and with the certainty that at an early date the Farmers party will dominate the Federal house there is an air of expectancy that many of the evils which have borne adversely upon the agricultural interests of the country will be removed; and that with these removals will come a brighter and better day for the farming community and with them Canada.. In a word the government is to bring prosperity.

From time memorial, it has been the boast of most all governments that they brought prosperity, or were just about to bring prosperity. The impartial student of the history of governments, both ancient and modern can tell us that the best that any government can do is to ensure conditions that make prosperity possible.

The functions of a government are to protect its subjects from attacks of hostile nations by maintaining a military force adequate to this purpose, and in the next place to protect its subjects from wrongs by the drawing up and enforcement of laws which shall uphold the right from the wrong. Apart from gaining wealth by conquest no government has been able to legislate prosperity into being. True prosperity comes only by the industry of the citizens themselves.

It is the ethics of good government that the laws and conditions under its authority should be favorable to the profitable enterprize of its subjects. In seeking to attain this ideal it is compelled to give expression to moral ideas in legal form and to enforce that legal code. The activities of a government will widen out to the extent of undertaking public works of magnitude, but it is very generally conceded that such government work should be confined to the narrowest limit compatible with the interests of the public, and the balance left to private enterprise.

The ideals contained in the definition 'group organization' are at once ideal and practical. We have had such in varying forms for many centuries. In modern history we find the guilds and in modern times we have our various trade associations and also our labor unions. All these have performed useful work. At times these have been powerful influences in politics, but always these organizations have done their most useful work when confining their efforts to their proper sphere. Their proper sphere being the economies of their own class, or in the language of today—group

By nature of his avocation (the oldest) the farmer has been one of the last to organize on the lines of a trade or profession. This he is now doing, and rightly doing. It may be said that the farmers organization is but just at the eve of commencing its work.

Is this work a political one or is it a matter of economies? It is political just as far as it is a portion of the nation, and it is political only to the extent that it secures just and equitable law for its own class and for its brother classes. Its more important function is that of economical organization. Or in other words the work before the farmer class is that of offering a parallel selling service comparable with that of the manufacturing producers; and like the manufacturing producers to control the price of the commodities they produce.

Expressed in other language, the farmer class must undertake that portion of their business which has up to now been performed for them by the grain trade and the meat packers. This is, the writer urges, a business, or economic, undertaking—not a political one.

It should be borne in mind all the time that no class can legislate itself rich, and remain long in possession of those riches. The days for that sort of thing are now past history. The most that can be obtained from legislation is fair and equitable conditions of living—there the task of legislation ends, but not so the objects of organization for they are but just about to begin.

It is with the above thoughts in mind that the writer contends that no group should control parliament. He urges that parliament should not be the battlefield of conflicting economic interests, be they that of the moneyed class, or be they that of any other class

He urges likewise that the economic question be faced squarely, and that more study be given to the selling end of the farmers business by the farmers themselves. With products sanely marketed there would be no room on God's earth for the fellows who play pitch and toss with the price of the farmers produce.

(Note) The columns of this paper are open to those who wish to discuss this question. Those holding opposite views are particularly invited to use our columns. Don't let us sit silent until next election, nor let the other fellow think for us. When you all co-operate the press will become 'independent' in the true sense of the word. Editor

It is pleasing to note the development that has been made in the local rural telephone service. From this little town no less than eleven lines now radiate, but there is need of eleven more which doubtless will be erected at an early date.

The most urgent need at the present time is that the Saskatchewan government fulfil their pledge to erect a line from Arltland to the Alberta boundary, and thus link up the very complete Manitou Lake Rural system

Every Monday morning sees a large flock of commercial travellers, representing all lines of merchandise, flood into town. Throughout the week there is a steady coming and going of these 'knights of the grip.'

There are far too many of these gentlemen whose expenses must be added to the cost of the goods. Individual effort has been made to reduce their number, but it seems futile. The time is approaching closely, if not here already when retailers will have to organize to prevent the waste of money under the present system.

This is the season when many farmers do their building. Few farms have all the grain storage room they need and experience shows that it is not always wise to rush grain to the track as it is threshed. Sometimes there is congestion, car shortage or prices may be unsatisfactory. As a matter of fact, all will admit that a granary is a prime necessity. The following table should be of use to those who contemplate additions to their storage space this year.

why he so upset when their party once in a blue moon gets reported exactly as the reporter saw it? Besides the fact remains that the delegate who was elected to the U.F.A.'s mentioned ONCE in the 'Star' version. But that's another story what we wish to remark is that those good U.F.A.'s. People who broke out in such a rash of resentment over a mild piece of word play that would be but a trifle like the recipe for growing a hide like a hippopotamus, for they surely are going to need it.

They may or may not succeed in gauging the local press, but what are they going to do with the provincial press? They are going to be abused to unwholy mirth by such papable evidence or a lack of spirit of give and take amongst the U.F.A.'s members?

The U.F.A.'s have jibed and jeered at lawyer and doctor representatives, and taken a little more than a good nature and use a little dry medicine themselves.

But honestly friends, isn't it a bit thick for H. C. Wood, the farmers friend to be so keen on nominating a immediate. Besides, what can the farmer do? He has no other life in his agricultural straits than know about the intricacies of pipe line bills and the way to encompass the immediate return of those natural resources, over which our good friends have split so much violent oratory these last weeks? Of course in the last five minutes of the debate, the U. S. Nominée was feeling like a superman and we understand one of them kindly assured the press the other day that "They would try awful hard not to run a Government like the last one." Attaboy, there's nothing like keeping up one's spirits, isn't it? Well, I don't know, but I think that's the way to win. I don't know, but let us cheer up, Mr. Greenfield has been said to be nothing notable as a farmer but he's an Englishman of the level headed type and seems more free from having troublesome pet obsessions than some of his confreres, while he makes no profession of being a socialist. I don't know, but I think it but we have been told to think it an authority that if a large percentage of U. F. voters had known beforehand that no matter how many votes they bestowed on a U. F. nominee, the price of wheat, of eggs, of butter and farm stuff generally would keep on fluctuating, they would have been more determined daring to stop it—they'd sure have voted for the MAN, and let the party go on the blink. Now the question is, was this unbelievable ignorance the result of not realizing the powers vested in a provincial government, or did come one with more rabidness for the party than respect for the truth propagate a new fairy tales around? Perhaps time will tell.

The High Commissioner for Canada was represented by Col. E. C. Compain at a very interesting ceremony, which took place in the Bramshott churchyard on Sunday evening, when the Right Rev. Bishop Crossley dedicated the great War Cross that has been erected by the Imperial Graves Commission in a central position, among the soldiers' graves. The occasion brought a large gathering of parishioners, who assembled in the field over looking the church yard, and opposite the monument itself a detachment of the 3rd Royal Fusiliers, under the command of Capt. C. L. Sutton, and Lieut. J. L. Lotting, from Borden Camp, with arms reversed, was drawn up. There were also present on parade the Liphook Company of Girl Guides, under Captain Miss Chichele Plowden, upon one side, and the Bramshott troop of the Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs, under the Master Tristram (scoutmaster and cubmaster) Assistant Scoutmaster Donoghue, and Miss Robbitt (cubs instructor), on the opposite side. The Scout's band, under Leslie Oliver, was present, as were also several members of the Bramshott and District Post of the Comrades of the Great War, including the Captain, Colonel G. C. R. Overton. Three trumpeters of the Royal Field Artillery attended with the military party, and stood facing them during the ceremony.

The dedication of the Great War Cross completes the work that was inaugurated six years ago, when the parishioners decided it was necessary to make a considerable extension to the churchyard in view of the establishment of Bramshott Camp, which was entirely situated within the parish boundary. An extension fund, amounting to £435, was raised almost entirely by local subscriptions, and a piece of ground was purchased adjoining the churchyard and duly consecrated by the Bishop of Winchester. Some 334 soldiers lie buried in the churchyard. Nearly all of these are Canadians, and the perfect way in which the graves are kept is evidence that the parish is proudly conscious of the trust committed to its charge in caring for the graves of those who nobly came to aid of the mother country in its hour of need, and whose dear ones are many hundreds of miles away.

The Memorial Cross, which adds much to the beauty of the churchyard, is of Portland stone, set upon a massive base. Upon the eastern side of the shaft is a large Crusader's sword in bronze, and below, the inscription, "Their name liveth for evermore," is cut into the base. The monument was designed by Sir Reinhold Bloomfield, R.A., and is exactly similar to those erected in the battlefields cemeteries. The execution of the work was entrusted to Messrs Harris and Sons, of Woking, and has been admirably carried out.

A row of maple trees borders the pathway through the churchyard, and behind are groups of pyrus floribunda and other flowering shrubs, just now coming into bloom. Some of the parishioners had laid a bunch of spring flowers upon each of the soldiers' graves and a large wreath of laurel tied with red, white, and blue streamers, was placed at the base of the memorial inscribed, "In honored memory of those who gave their lives for their Mother Country from the workers at the Liphook Soldiers Room 1915-1918." Another wreath bore a card, "In grateful memory of many friends," and Mr. E. J. Chapman placed on the memorial a laurel wreath, which contained the inscription, "To the glorious memory of our Comrades of the Canadian Forces from the Captain and members of the Bramshott Post of the Comrades of the Great War."

The service at the memorial was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. E. H. Polehampton) assisted by the Rev.

H. A. Bowles, assistant priest at Bramshott, and the Bishop was attended by the two churchwardens (Mr. H. Inigo Higgins and Mr. Hooker). The procession from the church to the memorial was led by Mr. Jasper Knight, and behind him were the choir and clergy. The opening hymn was, "Stand up, stand up, for Jesus," and afterwards appropriate prayers were recited by the Rector. The 139th Psalm was said, the congregation taking the alternative verses, and the lesson, taken from the 3rd chapter of Wisdom "The souls of the righteous," was read by the Rev. H. A. Bowles.

The service of dedication was then proceeded with, and Bishop Crossley, mounting the memorial, dedicated the Cross, using the following words: "In the faith of Jesus Christ we dedicate this Cross to the glory of God, and in memory of his servants, who lie in their last sleep round it, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

TWO WONDERFUL THINGS

Bishop Crossley addressing the congregation as "Fellow Soldiers, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides and friends assembled in reverent sympathy," said they stood in a churchyard which now possessed two churchyard crosses. As a rule there was only one, because the churchyard cross was so placed as to express the hope of eternal life, not only to the great and worthy, whose memorials might be read or erected, but to the humble lives who had no memorial and whose names were forgotten. The shadow of the churchyard cross fell alike upon them all, and one cross sufficed. But on that occasion they had two churchyard crosses, because twin nations lay there in their everlasting rest—twin nations separated by an ocean of vast extent, but joined in the fellowship of death in that old English churchyard. The great three hundred or more lay there from Canada. He had called them the great three hundred. They were many of them very young, most of them entered a campaign. They were only in the camp of preparation, and there the swift and unexpected overtook them and rapidly they died, and now they rested and slept in that beautiful churchyard. He had called them the great three hundred. Why had he ventured thus to name them? Because they were truly great inasmuch as they represented two wonderful things—the cause that brought them and the sense of duty which enabled them to come. Those two things would never die. They lived with them with the immortal. The world might pass and wither, but the causes which united the Empire's souls would surely never die, while breathed the name of Britain or of Empire. At that point he would like to pause and say how deeply he felt all of them must feel to one who had with his skill, taken such pains and care to make that churchyard a worthy memorial, in every sense, to their cousins from overseas. Mr. Triggs had indeed spared no pains to make that beautiful churchyard worthy of the new inhabitants that claimed their last refuge there. But the world might say, as they looked at those sad graves, so beautifully decked today by the care of loving hands—he hoped someone would tell the Canadians that the churchyard was what miserable ruin,—but that cross would stand for many generations to answer loudly "No." It was not lost nor ruin, because those lives, though great in their sense of duty and in the cause that brought them, were surely greater now with the expansion of knowledge which was their lot and with the fresh beauty of love shining upon them from the face of Jesus Christ.

It was not loss. He remembered that when he was in Canada there were two scenes which struck him very forcibly. One was at a place called Medicine Hat, and there, as they passed through on the great journey to the Pacific Coast, he found that the town was wonderfully lighted, and it was lighted by lights that never went out. There was a natural gas, which it was cheaper to burn all ways than to light periodically, and so they had the result of perpetual light. Then they went on to Vancouver, and there, in a lumber mill he saw something very much like perpetual motion, where the logs were hauled out passed through divers operations, and sawed into complete and finished articles for trade and commerce. But the curious thing was that the logs supplied the activity which consumed them namely, the sawdust which was carried in a continual stream to feed the furnaces. He wanted to use those two pictures of perpetual light and perpetual motion as being the symbols of the greatness of Canada.

MESSAGE OF HOPE TO MOURNING HEARTS

Canada was a very wonderful country, with great resources and possibilities. She was restless, as all true young life was restless, full of hope, and she had a vision which could and would be believed, accomplish greatness. She was full of light and full of motion. And she lay side by side with another great nation, the United States of America, and the most marvelous thing in frontier demarcation that the world had ever known lay between Canada and America, for that vast frontier, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, had no fortifications, no watchmen, and no guards. These two great nations lived side by side, unjealous and unguarded, and side by side they fought for the cause. When the United States recovered from its political dialectics, and when England established itself into a sense of fellowship and responsibility, then and then only and Canada, with our own conviction that would those twin nations of America and Canada within their own great selves throughout the Empire realize that it was from America that there came the highest piece of political idealism that the world had ever seen. He knew he spoke unpropitiously, but he claimed that that great citizen of America, with his 14 points, who secured the armistice which ended the great and terrible war would yet be honored wherever the name of humanity was loved. Meanwhile the Cross united them, because it stood for sacrifice and service. Its vast arms encompassed everywhere service, and in that mighty unity of the Cross they believed they would live and win. Those young men, whose bodies lay alongside the Cross were loved by their Countrymen. Tomorrow was St. Mark's Day and he liked to think that on the eve of St. Mark's day they dedicated the Cross to the memory of the young men whom Jesus loved. And to those mourning hearts in Canada, in those great cities, on the vast prairie, by the mighty lakes, by the long rivers, right to the cold grip of snow in the far north, they sent today a message from little Bramsholt. They wanted to tell them that those graves would be in safe keeping that they would guard them with reverent care, and see to it that naught diminished what affection and love would remain were they at home. They told their mourning hearts that though they were separated by oceans they were united under the shadow of a cross which consecrated all service and immortalized every duty that they had under its eternal promise. He who lived through life and entered death to live again that all might live with told them from His lips of immortality the text of the war that had made English religion a new thing. "Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." "Eternal rest grant them, O Lord, and may light perpetual shine upon them."

The detachment of Royal Fusiliers were then brought to the "Present arms" and the trumpeters of the Royal Artillery sounded the Last Post. The final hymn was "O what the joy and the glory will be," and after this had been sung a number of wreaths were placed upon the base of the monument.

A simple but impressive and memorable service thus came to a close, and afterwards the graves and the memorial were inspected with much interest by the large number of people present—Hants News, England.
